

Facilities and Capital Outlay Management Institute

The appropriate housing of Georgia's increasing student population depends upon effective funding, planning and construction of school facilities. The Facilities and Capital Outlay Management Institute provides each participant with two comprehensive reference manuals. The instructor guides participants through an intensive study of the processes and procedures used in planning and implementing a capital building project.

GSSA's Facilities and Capital Outlay Management Institute consists of four highly-focused classes, held in three 11/2-day sessions.

Throughout the course, participants will engage in activities that will include, but not be limited to the examination of best practices associated with:

- funding procurement
- architectural selection and design
- facility planning processes and project delivery
- project supervision
- building design, bidding, and construction

“...excellent job of presenting examples of every issue involving capital outlay.”

Mr. Mike Rowland is the instructor for this institute.

Mike Rowland is a retired educator with 40 years experience in Georgia's K-12 schools. Mike brings an intimate understanding of K-12 facilities through his past work at the Georgia Department of Education and as a Principal at various schools across Georgia. In addition, he is a founding board member of the National Council on School Facilities and other various K-12 focused organizations locally and nationally. He currently serves as an Educational Facilities Leader for SSOE-Stevens and Wilkinson.
